

André Soares

PASSION, PURPOSE AND PROGRESS

A business-oriented scientist and passionate about learning new things, André aims to blend business with science.

He acquired a deep knowledge and expertise, in protein engineering and antibody discovery.

Through an international Ph.D and while working at two biotechnology companies, André developed his critical thinking skills that help him adapt to unpredictable situations. He's a highly motivated professional who has had the opportunity to work in five different countries that enabled him to be in tuned with different cultures and different work groups.

He is devoted to help develop innovative technology through a managing or strategy position and to create value to both business and society.
